

From Super Mario to X-MEN

Kung-Kiu Lau¹

School of Computer Science
The University of Manchester
Manchester M13 9PL, United Kingdom

Abstract. In this talk I will give an overview of my own journey in software development research, a journey that started in logic programming, went through component-based development, and culminates in product families. From a model-theoretic perspective, the journey started with logical models and ended up with model-driven software development.