This book changed me. Writing it was an education. I began writing with the belief that I knew what I wanted to say; many months, many tears, and many proud moments later, I realize that this book took on a life of its own. It is more than I knew I could say, more than I ever thought I'd be able to put in one place. I know more now than I knew when I began this journey, and at the same time, I feel as if I know less. There is more information out there, more ideas, more knowledge and inspiration about food and health than could ever be gathered in one place. I've done my best, and I will never stop seeking.

So much gratitude goes to my husband, Spence, my greatest love and best friend, a man of extraordinary integrity and talent who makes me smile and laugh every day, and who drives me crazy in the best possible way. You have been everything to this process. I love you, I respect you, I am forever changed because of you.

To my parents: You are the people I respect most in this world, the people who gave me my sense of humor and, of course, my addiction to (and ability to quote) classic television and cinema. Dad, it's your example that helped me understand what it means to have integrity; Mom, it's your sense of purpose and perseverance—and your beautiful poetry—that inspired me throughout this writing process. My greatest hope is to make you both proud!

To my sister: You are a bright, shining light. You are hilarious. We are hilarious. I've never laughed so hard at nothing as I have with you. It's good for my soul! I've never been more fiercely proud of, or so deeply inspired by, anyone. Your beauty, depth, humor, and capabilities astound me. You are my closest friend and I'm so grateful for you.

To my grandmother: You are the most perceptive, well-read, intelligent woman I know. You embody true wisdom and principle.

To Mary, John, Sarah, Greg, Amy, and RayLynn: Thank you for being supportive, unconditional, and for providing a solid foundation. I am blessed to have all of you in my life.

To my military friends: Thank you for being a warm, welcoming second family, and thank you for your service and sacrifice.

To Diane, my podcast partner, colleague, and partner in travel-related hijinks: Thank you for believing in me. Thank you for being a force in the community, a constant source of inspiration, and an honest and true friend.

To Bill and Hayley, who are the reason I got to write this book: Thank you. You'll never know the extent of my respect for you both, and my gratitude for our friendship.

To my Steve's Club family; my friends (I consider you family) Quinn, Jessie, Christie, Layna, and Sally; and to Coach Rut, who started it all: You have been endless sources of inspiration to me. Thank you.

To those who have read my blog, listened to the Balanced Bites podcasts, and attended my workshops; and to the many amazing people I've met thanks to those endeavors: Your support is the reason I've been able to turn my passion into my profession. It is because of you, and all I've learned from you, that I was able to write this book. This is an incredible gift. Thank you.

To the Price-Pottenger Nutrition Foundation, the Nutritional Therapy Association, and the Farm to Consumer Legal Defense Fund: Thank you for introducing me to the work of Weston A. Price, which is preserved through the tireless work of the Weston A. Price Foundation, and for being so utterly dedicated to the cause of making real food, properly raised animals, and nutrition truths available to all. Immense gratitude also goes to Chris Masterjohn, Denise Minger, Mary Enig, and Fred Kummerow for being brave truth-tellers, and for analyzing and distilling volumes of scientific information for those of us who want to spread the word.

To Erin: Your hard work gave me clarity, and this book would be nothing but a long string of blather without you. I'm truly sorry for what you had to go through, but so grateful to have had you soldiering away to make this happen. I'll never be able to thank you enough.

And finally, to Erich: Thank you for your enthusiasm, for your dedication, and, most of all, for this opportunity. It is, quite literally, a dream come true.
