5. This man’s name has several spellings, and his history is obscure, most often noted in books written in foreign languages about the history of Islam or Spain. Wikipedia has the best reference to the “burn the boats” event that I could understand without first obtaining a master’s degree in Spanish or Islamic history. For more information see the Wiki entry for “Tariq ibn Ziyad” at https://wikipedia.org/wiki/Tariq\_ibn\_Ziyad.

9. Never one to let a few facts ruin a great story, I use this oft-told legend because it’s vivid and dramatic. Do an Internet search for “images Cortés burning” to see some glorious paintings of Cortés’s burning ships. However, if you’re a stickler for accuracy, I have to tell you that modern historians assert that while Cortés did dismantle his ships, he didn’t actually burn them.

5. Boaz refers to people as being younger than he is. See Ruth 2:8, 2:5, 3:10. There were several self-published commentaries that agreed with this age estimate, but not many of the true scholarly works would cite a specific age, leaving preachers like me no choice but to take the text at face value.
6. Deuteronomy 24:19, Leviticus 19:9, Leviticus 23:22.
7. Boaz gave them an ephah of barley, which is a bushel in today's farming lingo. A bushel of barley is forty-eight pounds, according to the US Administrative Codes, <http://www.ilga.gov/commission/jcar/admincode/008/00800600ZZ9998bR.html>. I did the math. If Naomi and Ruth ate barley for three meals a day at a normal serving (157 grams), the forty-eight pounds (21772.4 grams) would last the two women twenty-three days.
