Eurofound

From 15 – 17 October, Eurofound will hold an exhibition at the European Parliament in Brussels.

The agency, which provides comprehensive social, employment and work-related data and analysis for EU policymakers, will be celebrating its upcoming 50th anniversary.

At the exhibition, Eurofound will showcase fresh findings on topics that are at the heart of Europe's priorities – such as AI in the workplace, affordable housing, employment, a just transition, industrial relations, inequalities and the future of work.

There will be several activities organised within the exhibition including a panel debate on 16 October, 10 – 12h on "Building a competitive Europe for its people – A future with quality jobs, affordable housing and access to opportunities".

EU-OSHA

STOP Carcinogens at work

A new website to help prevent workers in the workplace from being exposed to carcinogens has been published:

<https://stopcarcinogensatwork.eu>

The website provides information on practical occupational safety and health (OSH), how to identify risks and to protect workers from cancer-causing agents.

ELA

EURES Story exhibition at the European Parliament

The European Labour Authority (ELA) is organising the exhibition "30 Years of EURES - The EURES Story exhibition - 30 years supporting fair work anywhere in Europe" at the European Parliament premises in Brussels. This exhibition showcases the milestones of 30 years of EURES, from its history to its impact on jobseekers and employers across borders, reflecting also on the current services fostering European labour mobility and cooperation across the EU/EEA and Switzerland. The exhibition is open to visitors to the European Parliament from 15 to 18 October at the Balcony Area 5G - SPINELLI building.
